

Will Take the Case Before Justice Goff

Whitman Determined to Get at Bottom of Police Scandal.

BECKER TRIAL IN SEPTEMBER

New York District Attorney's Appeal to Governor Dix Promptly Answered and John Doe Inquiry Will Be Most Thorough Ever Undertaken in City—Fear Announcement of Plan May Drive Gamblers, Grafters and Dive Keepers to Cover.

New York, Aug. 17.—At the request of District Attorney Whitman, Supreme Court Justice John W. Goff will preside over an extraordinary session of the supreme court in September. The trials of Lieutenant Becker and the others accused of the murder of Herman Rosenthal will very likely have other and more important features than other murder trials.

It is the purpose of the district attorney to have Justice Goff sit as a committing magistrate in a general investigation of graft and dishonesty in the police department. Backed by the power of the supreme court, Justice Goff will be able to accomplish more than could the aldermanic committee under its limited powers. The program so far outlined is for a special judge to be at the head of the most widespread John Doe inquiry in the history of the city. Even if the aldermen's investigation is going on Justice Goff and his grand jury will be subpoenaing witnesses of sorts to appear and tell what they know about dishonest policemen, dishonest civilians and to reveal how much money has been passing out of the city.

Very strong efforts have been made to keep secret this plan. It was feared that an announcement might drive out of town gamblers and go-karting men for the upper and under worlds. As a matter of fact several sporting men and politicians, who feared that they would be netted in such proceeding, have left the city. But there are hundreds of gamblers, disorderly house keepers and sporting men, as well as politicians, lawyers and business men, who will follow John Doe in the forthcoming special investigation to be conducted by Justice Goff and the district attorney.

Governor Dix's order for an extraordinary trial term of the supreme court beginning the first Tuesday in September, and naming Justice Goff to preside, was the outcome of a letter which District Attorney Whitman sent to the governor on Thursday by special messenger.

POLICE ON THE RACK

Wide to Investigate Tale They Let Wiretappers Slip.

New York, Aug. 17.—An immediate investigation into the conduct of Police Lieutenant Becker, brother of Lieutenant Charles Becker, under indictment for the Rosenthal murder, and other tenderloin detectives was ordered by Police Commissioner Wallace in connection with a story told by a newspaper reporter of alleged police laxity in failing to arrest a wiretapper, while the reporter was lunching with his intended victim and others in Delmonico's. The story was told the reporter by friends of E. Kaufmann, of Pittsburgh.

ENTHUSES PROVIDENCE CROWD

Declares That He Started Progressive Movement Two or Three Years Earlier Than It Would Otherwise Have Been Started—Admits That They Will Make Mistakes, but Don't Want Bosses to Make Them For the People.

Providence, R. I., Aug. 17.—Though only enrolled members of the Progressive party had received tickets, fully 2,500 people were seated in Infantry hall three-quarters of an hour before the time announced for the appearance of Colonel Roosevelt, who was to deliver the opening address of his campaign of the New England states. On the platform were upwards of 50 people, among whom were several women, including Florence Garvin and Elizabeth Upham Yates, well known suffrage leaders. The galleries, for which seats had been sold at $1 each, were filled all the way around the hall.

Colonel Roosevelt's greeting at the hall was enthusiastic. While the band played "Hail to the Chief" the entire crowd of about 3,000 people was on its feet and for 10 minutes the hall was a bedlam. In the big corridors outside were hundreds who were unable to get into the hall, and while Julian S. Wadsworth offered prayer and while Chairman Edwin F. Tuttle was making his introductory remarks a condition arose approaching a riot. It took the pitched battle on the part of the police to close the doors, and when the colonel was introduced there was another long outburst of cheering.

Makes It Emphatic. "I have been asked two or three times since my arrival in this city," he said, "this question: 'Is this Progressive movement a movement that is going to last, or is it only a fad?' I want to tell you right now, and most emphatically, that it is a movement that is here to stay, and that I have simply started it two or three years earlier than it would otherwise have started. It is a permanent movement and it is here to stay."

During the progress of his speech the colonel was frequently interrupted by cheers. Cheers followed the statement, "The Progressive party has made up its mind that it would like to have the United States senate represent someone other than it does represent."

Again there was loud applause when the colonel said "Our opponents have said we shall make mistakes. Very true. I expect that we shall, but we will make them ourselves; we don't want the bosses to make our mistakes for us."

While the Infantry hall meeting was in session, an overflow session was held in the Providence opera house, which was also crowded at 50 cents a head. From the main meeting the colonel was driven to the opera house, where he again spoke along the same lines.

A FAIR FIGHT ONLY REQUEST OF PRESIDENT

Says Electors Who Bolt Him Are Dishonest Men.

ADDRESSES MARYLAND EDITORS

Wants to Make Cleavage Clear as Possible, So That Those Who Are Republicans Shall Be Known as Such and Those Who Are With Bolters Shall Bear Their Name and Title—Can Not Be Both and Be Square.

Washington, Aug. 17.—In addressing members of the Maryland Republican Press association in the east room of the White House, President Taft declared very bluntly that presidential electors were "dishonest men" if they let their names appear on the Republican ballot and intended to vote for the candidate of another party. He asserted that those who were not for the Republican party were against it and should get out of the way.

"All we ask is a fair fight. A man can not be in the Republican party and in a third party at the same time, and should be compelled to make his selection," said the president. "Regularity, or feeling of regularity and respect for the Republican party for what it has done, what it is capable of doing, are going to bring over into the Republican party many a man who has been doubtful, and it is going to increase that number, in my judgment, as we approach the election."

"It is, therefore, essential that we make the cleavage as clear as it can be made, so that those who are Republicans shall be Republicans, and those who are with the bolters shall bear their name and title and not be Republicans and bolters, because they can not be both—at least they ought not to be, in all fairness."

Federals Are Now In Control

Orozco and Followers Leave Juarez During Night.

El Paso, Tex., Aug. 17.—Juarez, for months a rebel stronghold, is again under federal control, and the army of General Pascual Orozco is fleeing from General Tellez. Orozco evacuated Juarez during the night. At daybreak Colonel Juan Medina, former mayor, went into Juarez with a vigilance committee of 100 and is in charge of the city.

Dr. Boggess Receives Severe Shock at St. Louis.

Columbus, O., Aug. 17.—Two weeks now have passed since Mrs. Ethel Keating Boggess, wife of Dr. John S. Boggess of Kansas City and daughter of Attorney T. J. Keating of this city, disappeared from her home, and her whereabouts still remain as profound a mystery as when she first disappeared.

One St. Louis clew which appeared for a time to lead to the missing woman was run down by Dr. Boggess and Burns detectives, but it too, proved false. A woman answering the description of Mrs. Boggess was reported to have been taken into an apartment house from the streets, where she was found wandering aimlessly.

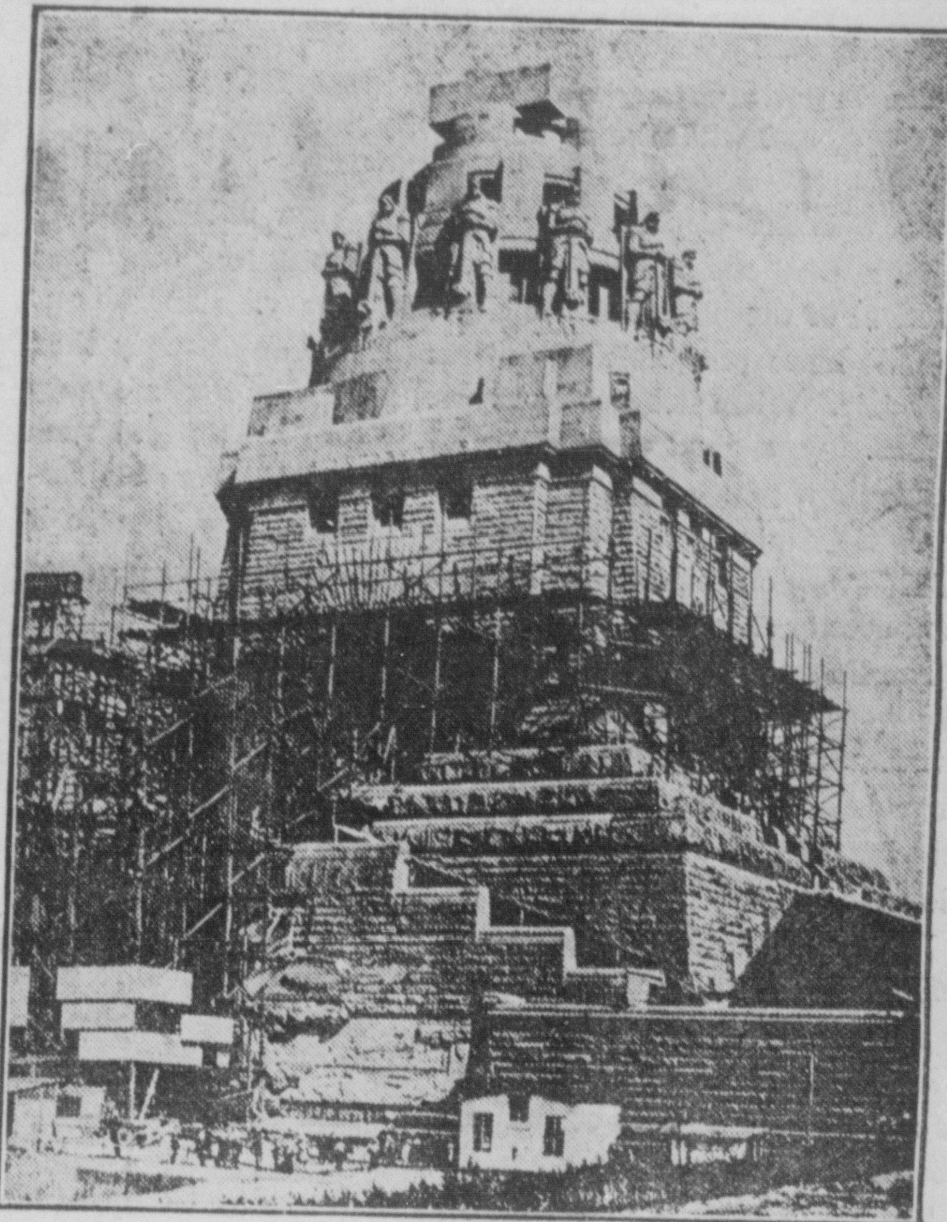

Lying on a bed, the woman looked so much like his wife that Dr. Boggess started toward her and shouted his wife's name. The woman turned over and the doctor's head dropped. It was not Mrs. Boggess, but he declared the woman to be almost an exact double of his wife. The woman was a nurse who had been missing since Aug. 6.

Rebels Take Sudden Departure From In Front of Managua.

Washington, Aug. 17.—The appearance of 350 marines at Managua had a quieting effect on the rebel forces that have been bombarding the Nicaraguan capital since last Friday, according to a telegram received at the state department from Minister Weltzel. The minister stated that as soon as the marines joined 100 bluejackets already on the ground guarding the American legation, General Zeledon, commanding the rebels, began to withdraw. At night he had reached Masaya, 18 miles from the capital.

Huge Monument That Will Mark Leipzig Battlefield

THE bloodiest battle of history will be commemorated by the German government next year at Leipzig, Germany. Here the allied armies of Russia, Austria and Prussia for the four days, Oct. 16-19, 1813, contended with the forces of Napoleon, who was at last forced to retreat to the Rhine with only 90,000 of the 150,000 men with whom he began the battle. The allies, who numbered 300,000, lost 51,000 men. A huge battle monument is in process of erection not far from the spot from which Napoleon directed the engagement. Bruno Schmitz is the architect. His work, which is now approaching completion, will be dedicated on the centennial anniversary of the battle, and, although the program is not yet announced in detail, it may be safely assumed that the dedication will be attended with the military pomp and ceremony befitting so memorable an occasion. The cost of the monument will be about $1,500,000.

A call for the selection of delegates to the convention will be issued by James R. Garfield of Cleveland, the provisional chairman, next week.

THE COUNTY FAIR.

The Fayette County Fair for the year 1912 has passed into history and will take a place in the front rank of its long string of predecessors.

The Fayette County Fair has long been noted far and wide as a good one and that reputation has endured largely to the benefit of the people of the city and county. There is no better, no more profitable advertisement for any county than a good fair. When it becomes known, generally, that a county has, annually, a good clean county fair that means that such a county is a prosperous, agricultural county. It means further that the people are energetic and progressive because it requires every one of these elements in combination to produce a good county fair.

The Fayette County Fair of 1912 was good in every sense of the word. It was clean, it was wholesome, it was instructive, it furnished a splendid index to our prosperity, it brought thousands of visitors here from far and near and it impressed those visitors with our ability to do and our fund of good things to do with.

It was enjoyable to our own people and enjoyable to our friends and neighbors who came to see just how we were getting along. The home folks who attended the fair feel better for knowing what we have in the granary, being reminded once more of the bigness of the capital with which nature has endowed us.

The strangers feel better for knowing now that they have seen it with their own eyes, that there is just such a prosperous, wide awake county doing business and knowing this will establish and maintain for a long time a high place for Fayette County.

Congratulations are due and are generously given by home folks and visitors alike to the management for a well ordered exhibition of the right tone.

RABIES INCREASING.

In 1909 the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service instituted an investigation as to the frequency of rabies in the United States during the year 1908. All possible sources of information were utilized and complete verification of the cases was attempted in every instance.

A comparison with the figures obtained in 1911 would indicate that the infection is on the increase. In that year, cases were reported from 1,381 localities as against 534 in 1908, while there were only ninety-eight deaths in 1911, notwithstanding the largely increased number of localities from which the disease was reported, as compared with 111 deaths in 1908.

This is accounted for probably by the large increase in the number of institutions in which the antirabic treatment could be obtained and by the fact that the victims availed themselves more largely of this treatment.

In 1908 there were twenty-three institutions in the country where this treatment was administered; in 1911 there were at least forty-two. In addition there are a number of laboratories which supply material for inoculations to practicing physicians. The number of persons known to have taken this treatment in 1908 was about 1,500, while in 1911 it was 4,625.

The figures for 1911 show that the period of incubation in nineteen out of sixty-five cases was between twenty-one and thirty days, this being the greatest number for any given incubation period. Three cases occurred over twelve months after the injury. The average incubation period of all cases, excluding those over one year, was 49.25 days.

The decrease in the number of deaths in 1911 as compared with 1908 amounted to nearly 12 per cent. Striking facts brought out in this report are the wider distribution of the infection, its spread on the Pacific coast, which section in 1908 seemed to entirely free from the disease, and the diseased death rate owing to better facilities for treatment and better distribution of the antirabic virus.

The situation calls for still greater efforts toward the complete eradication of this preventable disease.

Moderation in all things, advised St. Paul. There is a safe medium between the pace of an ox team that the old folks waited two or three days for and the speed of autos curving around corners into overcongested thoroughfares and the whizzing of lightning speeded motorcycles.

"All's well that ends well," and the tortoise oftentimes gets there first.

The hurried meals, the complexity of unwisely self-imposed obligations, the lack of backbone, which opposes with an emphatic "No" the desire of a morbidly constituted public which demands the sensational in sky, earth and water—are causes backing a great mortality in modern times.

Hurry and worry have almost done away with the fine art of meditation, which looks placidly at things present and largely and grandly into the eternal verities.

THE GREAT TREASURE.

Old Croesus underwent demise
And, having duly dried their eyes,
His waiting heirs
To get their shares
His treasures put on sale.
His library, his pictures too,
Brought eager millionaires to view,
Prepared to spend
Without an end
Mazuma, plunks and kale.

A pair of battered candlesticks
Made in one thousand sixty-six
Were auctioned for
More louis d'or
Than Louis ever possessed.
Then Midas fifty thousand spent
To get a dinky ornament
That once was seen
Upon a Queen
(And neither of the best).

A king of oil made haste to pay
A million for a Meissonier
Six inches wide,
Six deep beside
(The house threw in the frame)
Then spoke the awestruck auctioneer
"The greatest prize of all is here,
Be quiet please!
Don't shove! Don't squeeze!
What's offered for the same?"

With every person mad to buy,
The bids went mounting to the sky
Until at last
The treasure passes
For twenty millions clear.
What brought this price beyond belief?

Well, when there's scarcity of beef
The rich, you bet,
Must pay to get
One whole, large Texas steer!

MRS. HENDERSON'S WAIST.

Mrs. Henderson isn't going to wear that pretty white waist of hers again, because it came from the wash all streaked and spotted by the rosin that was in the common yellow soap.

If Mrs. Henderson will have it washed again with Easy Task soap, which has no rosin in it to streak and rot the fabric, ten to one it will look like new. Easy Task does wonders for the clothes and for the women who work. Costs no more than poor soaps.

Suffragists to Have Day.

Columbus, O., Aug. 17.—The Ohio-Columbus centennial committee has designated Aug. 27 as Ohio Woman's Suffrage day. The suffragists will parade in the morning, and it is expected that thousands of marchers will be in line. The Baltimore suffrage chariot and a division of woman horseback riders will head the line. Continuous open-air speaking will be the feature for the balance of the day.

Lad's Neck Broken.

Columbus, O., Aug. 17.—Leo Bernhard, 17, had his neck broken when a bicycle he was riding collided with an automobile, and his recovery is considered doubtful. Charles Ogler, 18, was hurled from the back of an automobile when it collided with another machine. He sustained a fractured skull and his recovery is doubtful.

Howells Has Unique Headstone.

Jefferson, O., Aug. 17.—Unique but appropriate will be the monument of the late Joseph A. Howells in Oakdale cemetery here. It will be an ink-stained marble slab, battered by the use of years, during which the forms of the old Sentinel were "made up" over it.

Springfield, O., Aug. 17.—Reuben Benjamin Hershey, 63, a carpenter of Osborn, who attempted suicide by jabbing the blade of a knife into his arms and severing a large vein, died several hours later.

Boy Drowned While Fishing.

Xenia, O., Aug. 17.—While fishing from a high bank on Massie's creek, Arthur Kinney, 12, fell into the creek and was drowned before aid could reach him.

Farmers' Picnic Largely Attended

Several thousand people attended the annual picnic at Lyndon, Thursday, and a pleasant day resulted. The Edwards Sisters Quartet and the Price Band furnished music for the affair, and Hon. L. C. Dick of West Jefferson delivered one of his strongest speeches during the afternoon.

The Hillsboro Chautauqua and the Fayette County Fair drew heavily from the usual attendance at the picnic, but regardless of this the crowd was over 5,000, and greatly resembled a county fair.

Farm produce in large quantities was exhibited and liberal prizes awarded.

SHOULD THE WOMAN PROPOSE

Question That Seemingly May Be Lled On to Get an Argument at Any Time.

Ever since this conundrum was put to me, I have been submitting it to everybody I met. There has been extraordinary diversity in the answers. They have run from a shocked "No! No! No!" through a hesitating, "Well, I don't see why—and yet I could never do it myself," to a decided, "Yes, certainly! Why not?"

One woman said: "Under no circumstances. Nothing ever justifies us in forgetting our womanliness." Another: "Yes, indeed. In fact, I proposed to my husband. I saw that he was in love with me, but that he thought that we could not afford to be married. I knew that we could, and so I proposed to him." Another: "Of course women should propose. They are much better judges of character than men, more intuitive and spiritual." Another: "If women proposed, there would be fewer unhappy marriages. As things are, men can choose from their entire set of women. Women can choose only from those who propose to them. If women proposed more of them would marry the man they really wanted to marry." Another: "I think the one should propose who could do it the most artistically." (Note—She was a young girl.)

WHY IS THE HAIR LIKE ROSES?

"Grace, now listen to this! Mrs. Mason says 'The hair requires what a gardener would give his roses—intelligent cultivation and nutrition. As all living things require food, why should the hair be starved?' Now isn't that so?"

"Yes, Mary, I think Mrs. Mason is right, and since using her Old English Shampoo Cream and rubbing the tonic properties into the roots of my hair, it has stopped falling out, and has commenced to grow as it never did before."

"I think we are very fortunate to be able to obtain this shampoo made from the private formula of such a noted Hair Specialist as Kate Seaton Mason right here in Washington C. H., at Blackmer & Tanquary's Drug Store, and only 25c. a tube, enough for several shampoos, and they offer to return your money if you do not like it."

THE COUNTY FAIR.

The Fayette County Fair for the year 1912 has passed into history and will take a place in the front rank of its long string of predecessors.

The Fayette County Fair has long been noted far and wide as a good one and that reputation has endured largely to the benefit of the people of the city and county. There is no better, no more profitable advertisement for any county than a good fair. When it becomes known, generally, that a county has, annually, a good clean county fair that means that such a county is a prosperous, agricultural county. It means further that the people are energetic and progressive because it requires every one of these elements in combination to produce a good county fair.

The Fayette County Fair of 1912 was good in every sense of the word. It was clean, it was wholesome, it was instructive, it furnished a splendid index to our prosperity, it brought thousands of visitors here from far and near and it impressed those visitors with our ability to do and our fund of good things to do with.

It was enjoyable to our own people and enjoyable to our friends and neighbors who came to see just how we were getting along. The home folks who attended the fair feel better for knowing what we have in the granary, being reminded once more of the bigness of the capital with which nature has endowed us.

The strangers feel better for knowing now that they have seen it with their own eyes, that there is just such a prosperous, wide awake county doing business and knowing this will establish and maintain for a long time a high place for Fayette County.

Congratulations are due and are generously given by home folks and visitors alike to the management for a well ordered exhibition of the right tone.

RABIES INCREASING.

In 1909 the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service instituted an investigation as to the frequency of rabies in the United States during the year 1908. All possible sources of information were utilized and complete verification of the cases was attempted in every instance.

A comparison with the figures obtained in 1911 would indicate that the infection is on the increase. In that year, cases were reported from 1,381 localities as against 534 in 1908, while there were only ninety-eight deaths in 1911, notwithstanding the largely increased number of localities from which the disease was reported, as compared with 111 deaths in 1908.

This is accounted for probably by the large increase in the number of institutions in which the antirabic treatment could be obtained and by the fact that the victims availed themselves more largely of this treatment.

In 1908 there were twenty-three institutions in the country where this treatment was administered; in 1911 there were at least forty-two. In addition there are a number of laboratories which supply material for inoculations to practicing physicians. The number of persons known to have taken this treatment in 1908 was about 1,500, while in 1911 it was 4,625.

The figures for 1911 show that the period of incubation in nineteen out of sixty-five cases was between twenty-one and thirty days, this being the greatest number for any given incubation period. Three cases occurred over twelve months after the injury. The average incubation period of all cases, excluding those over one year, was 49.25 days.

The decrease in the number of deaths in 1911 as compared with 1908 amounted to nearly 12 per cent. Striking facts brought out in this report are the wider distribution of the infection, its spread on the Pacific coast, which section in 1908 seemed to entirely free from the disease, and the diseased death rate owing to better facilities for treatment and better distribution of the antirabic virus.

The situation calls for still greater efforts toward the complete eradication of this preventable disease.

Moderation in all things, advised St. Paul. There is a safe medium between the pace of an ox team that the old folks waited two or three days for and the speed of autos curving around corners into overcongested thoroughfares and the whizzing of lightning speeded motorcycles.

"All's well that ends well," and the tortoise oftentimes gets there first.

The hurried meals, the complexity of unwisely self-imposed obligations, the lack of backbone, which opposes with an emphatic "No" the desire of a morbidly constituted public which demands the sensation.

tion in sky, earth and water—are causes backing a great mortality in modern times.

Hurry and worry have almost done away with the fine art of meditation, which looks placidly at things present and largely and grandly into the eternal verities.

Hurry and Worry Proving Our Undoing

THE GREAT TREASURE.

Old Croesus underwent demise
And, having duly dried their eyes,
His waiting heirs
To get their shares
His treasures put on sale.
His library, his pictures too,
Brought eager millionaires to view,
Prepared to spend
Without an end
Mazuma, plunks and kale.

A pair of battered candlesticks
Made in one thousand sixty-six
Were auctioned for
More louis d'or
Than Louis ever possessed.
Then Midas fifty thousand spent
To get a dinky ornament
That once was seen
Upon a Queen
(And neither of the best).

A king of oil made haste to pay
A million for a Meissonier
Six inches wide,
Six deep beside
(The house threw in the frame)
Then spoke the awestruck auctioneer
"The greatest prize of all is here,
Be quiet please!
Don't shove! Don't squeeze!
What's offered for the same?"

With every person mad to buy,
The bids went mounting to the sky
Until at last
The treasure passes
For twenty millions clear.
What brought this price beyond belief?
Well, when there's scarcity of beef
The rich, you bet,
Must pay to get
One whole, large Texas steer!

MRS. HENDERSON'S WAIST.

Mrs. Henderson isn't going to wear that pretty white waist of hers again, because it came from the wash all streaked and spotted by the rosin that was in the common yellow soap.

If Mrs. Henderson will have it washed again with Easy Task soap, which has no rosin in it to streak and rot the fabric, ten to one it will look like new. Easy Task does wonders for the clothes and for the women who work. Costs no more than poor soaps.

PANAMA BILL NOT TO LIKING OF TAFT ANNOUNCE FRIENDS

Free Toll Provision May Draw Veto.

Washington, Aug. 17. — President Taft told a number of his friends that he was uncertain what he would do in regard to the Panama canal bill when it finally was laid before him, and the prospects that he will veto the measure are considered good.

As indicating his unfavorable attitude towards the free tolls provision in the bill, it was learned that the president himself only a day or two ago, sent letters to Chairman Adamson of the house and Chairman Brandegee of the senate conferees suggesting a provision which might relieve the present situation. The president urged that an amendment be added to the bill conferring upon courts of the United States jurisdiction to pass on damage suits brought by aliens on account of the free toll provisions in the bill. This would in effect confer upon the courts the power of construing the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, and in the event of decision against the United States would result in the nullification of the free tolls section of the bill. The president's suggestion, however, came too late, as the conference report had been completed and agreed upon.

Representative Adamson, who is a Democrat, wrote to the president, contending that the powers which he proposed were in effect conferred on the new district court that is to be created on the isthmus, but other conferees differ from Mr. Adamson on this point.

The conference report on the Panama bill was adopted by the senate by a vote of 49 to 18. The bill will pass the house today and will then be laid before Mr. Taft.

A new element of opposition to the bill made its appearance. Organized labor was heard from in opposition to the section of the bill which allows foreign-built vessels to be admitted to American registry if they are owned exclusively by Americans.

Paris, Aug. 17.—A Japanese financier, whose official mission in Paris prevents his name being given, in reply to a question as to the truth of the statement that the visit of Mr. Knox, American secretary of state, to Japan to attend the mikado's funeral, was resented in that country, said:

"Mr. Knox's presence at the mikado's funeral is viewed by the Japanese, the highest and lowest alike, as evidence of gross bad taste. Evidently the Japanese foreign office is unable to say so, as courtesy is a primordial factor in my country. Nevertheless we Japanese who will see him at the mikado's funeral will feel that he is in our country on business, that he is working his dollar doctrine. We regarded the mikado with veneration and the presence of any business element at the coming sacred rite is to us an impertinence. He may assure us of America's friendship, but we do not need to be taught what we well know."

Sea Girt, N. J., Aug. 17.—The first canvass of the sentiment of the country by states, made through the Democratic national committee, has been completed, and the results reached Sea Girt.

Summarizing, it shows an overwhelming Wilson sentiment throughout the country, a complete change in the political map of the country, a recasting of the lists of the doubtful, certain and lost states and a division of the electoral votes into three columns. It also shows that although Wilson would be elected by as great a majority as any president, there can be no resting on the oars by the campaign managers of the Democratic nominee, overconfidence, no taking anything for granted, but a steady and progressive campaign in all sections.

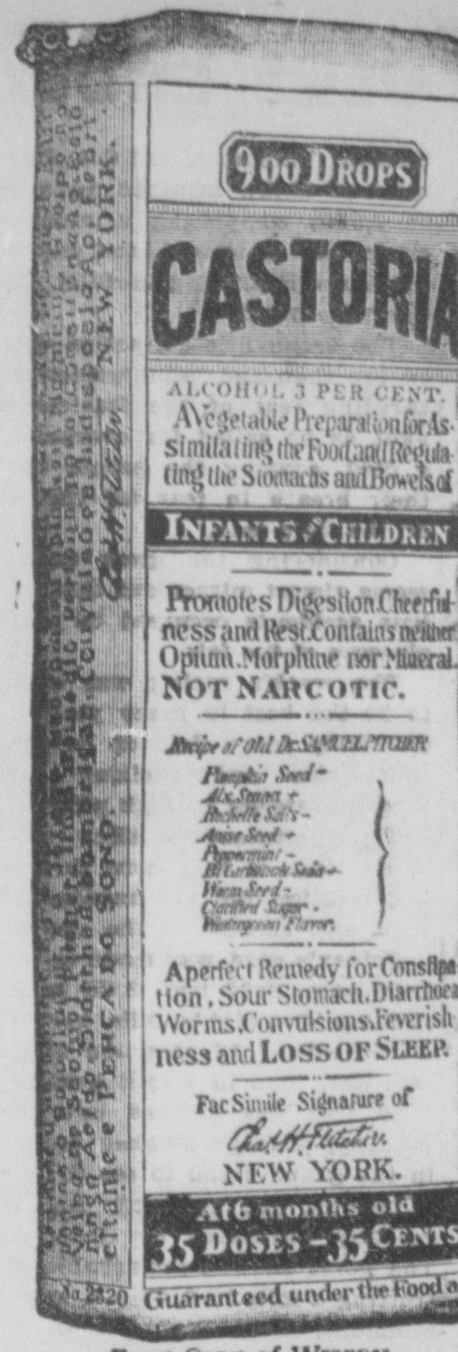

"If the election were held tomorrow, or in the next few days," said Mr. Daniels, chairman of the publicity committee, "President Taft and Mr. Roosevelt together would not carry more than 10 states. The sentiment for Wilson is overwhelming."

Largest Flying Fish.

The largest flying fish on record was served up for breakfast on the British warship Ardeola a short time ago. The Ardeola was homeward bound and was off the Canary Islands when a large school of flying fish was observed. They were apparently in full flight from some deep sea enemy and traveling rapidly. As the ship met and passed them several flew on board and were seized by the crew as welcome additions to the mess. One of the fish measured 19 inches; the largest flying fish ever seen before the Ardeola's catch have never exceeded 10 inches. The big one was fried for the captain's breakfast. Flying fish are very palatable and taste like trout.

The Ardeola was homeward bound and was off the Canary Islands when a large school of flying fish was observed. They were apparently in full flight from some deep sea enemy and traveling rapidly. As the ship met and passed them several flew on board and were seized by the crew as welcome additions to the mess. One of the fish measured 19 inches; the largest flying fish ever seen before the Ardeola's catch have never exceeded 10 inches. The big one was fried for the captain's breakfast. Flying fish are very palatable and taste like trout.

those of Thursday, and Col. Peck, in his last flight, attained an altitude of 3,000, completing a number of circles in his descent, and upon both occasions landing gracefully in the quarter stretch.

The aeronautic attraction delighted the thousands who witnessed the thrilling feat of the fearless aeronaut as he sailed far overhead like a bird, causing the people to hold their breath in fear for the safety of the bird-man.

Considering the great crowd, it seems almost miraculous that no serious accidents occurred to mar the pleasure of the fair.

The week's racing was conceded to be the best in many years. The unusually large field of horses, the split heats and exciting finishes keeping interest at high pitch.

To superintendent Allen of the speed ring, is due more than passing mention for the number of entries and success of the races.

Friday's card was made up of the 2:16 pace, 2:22 trot, 2:20 pace and running five-eighths mile heats.

Both the 2:16 pace and the 2:22 trot were won in 5 split heats. The 2:20 trot was finished late in the evening, a large number remaining in the grand stand to see the finish.

Interest was centered in Dium recently purchased by Chas. Allen. The horse showed remarkable speed, trotting a mile in 2:20 1-4, and J. C. Simmons, the J. D. and E. C. McCoy favorite, was back on the track in two heats. Valley's Lady Phillips, Dium and Simmons made an exciting bunched finish, with cheer after cheer from the grand stand. In the second heat, won by Dium, the last quarter was lightning fast.

The races moved off promptly. Stephen Phillips Jr., was again in the stand as starter and Messrs William Worthington, Roy Hagler and Wm. Cross, of Chillicothe acted as judges.

CHILD'S SKULL CRUSHED IN A RUNAWAY ACCIDENT

Trephinning Necessary to Save Life of Little Guy Roberts, of Near New Martinsburg, Who Is Now on Road to Recovery After Large Section of the Skull Is Removed.

A runaway accident which came near resulting in the death of seven-year-old Guy Roberts, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Roberts, living near New Martinsburg, occurred a day or two ago.

The lad was in a buggy to which a horse was hitched, and the animal suddenly took fright and ran away, overturning the rig and catching the child in the wreckage. After dragging him some distance the horse commenced kicking and one of its steel shod hoofs struck the little fellow full in the side of the head, crushing the skull.

The parents, frightened almost out of their wits, hurriedly summoned Dr. Harper of Euena Vista and Dr. Jones of Greenfield, who found the child in an unconscious condition with the entire left side paralyzed. After a careful examination it was found that a large section of the skull must be removed, and the physicians set about the work of trephinning.

It was necessary to remove a section of the skull, or almost all of the temporal bone, about one and three quarters inches by two and one half inches. As soon as this was done and the pressure on the brain removed the child rested easier and regained consciousness. The paralysis of the side was also ended by the operation.

Latest reports from the little sufferer are that he will speedily recover, and will suffer no further serious effects from his horrible experience which nearly resulted in death.

Things Fish Can See.

It is doubtful if fish can distinguish forms outside the water, but they unquestionably can see moving objects at considerable distance. Their instinct teaches them to flee from strange moving things and from shadows thrown on the water by persons moving along the waterside or by birds flying over. The proof that they cannot see the outlines of forms sufficiently well to distinguish between animate and inanimate objects, is that they will show no more fear of an angler standing perfectly still in the water, than they will of a tree or other harmless object. That their sight is keen in the water is evidenced by the fact that game fishes, that prey on their fellows, do much of their feeding at night, pursuing and capturing minnows and other small fish in deep, dark holes.

A runaway accident which came

ELEVEN CARS LEAVE TRACK AND TRAFFIC IS TIED UP

D. T. & I. Has Another Costly "Spill" Near South Charleston Yesterday, and Wreckers Are Still Busy Opening Up Track. All Trains Late.

With traffic schedules all demoralized and consequent inconvenience to hundreds of passengers, the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton railroad is wrestling with an unusually bad freight wreck at Tharp's Station, some five miles south of South Charleston, and the regular schedule may not be resumed until late tonight.

The wreck occurred Friday when north-bound freight No. 119 in charge of conductor Silas Oren, left the rails eleven cars piling up in the ditch, on the roadway tearing up the track for several hundred feet.

When the wreck occurred the train was making good speed, and it is supposed that a broken flange caused a wheel to climb the rail, and a few minutes later the cars were plowing wildly in all directions. Luckily no one was seriously injured.

Some of the cars were broken into kindling wood, it is reported, and the damage to goods in the derailed cars was heavy, so that in addition to the loss of rolling stock, track and time, the company will have heavy damages to pay.

Up to Saturday afternoon no trains had been able to pass the spot, and the passenger trains have been running as far as the wreck and making transfer. No. 2 the early morning train, ran up to the wreck Saturday and returned as No. 5, arriving here at noon, or two hours and ten minutes late.

A wreck crew has been at work clearing up the wreck and making repairs.

CLEVELAND NEWSPAPER

Endorses the Initiative and Referendum in its Editorial Columns.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer says that the Initiative and Referendum "should be given a decisive affirmative at the ballot box."

The Ohio State Board of Commerce is urging the voters to oppose all of the amendments, and particularly to oppose the Initiative and Referendum.

The following editorial from the Cleveland Plain Dealer is for several reasons of especial importance. It shows that in the judgment of this paper the voters of Ohio should not be guided by the advice of The Ohio State Board of Commerce.

The Initiative and Referendum provision, which is pending, is fair and wise. It will improve representative government. It will diminish legislative corruption. The adoption of this amendment will be a victory for good government. It will be a triumph of sound and wise statesmanship. Here is what the editorial says:

The I. and R.; Proposal No. 6.

The establishment of the Initiative and Referendum, proposed in the sixth amendment on the Ohio constitutional ballot, was the most widely discussed action of the recent convention. Many will hold it the most important work of the delegates. It was one act specifically authorized by the vote of last November.

This provision as it stands does not suit the ultra-radical advocates of direct legislation. They hold that the general direct initiative should have been written into the amendment. They believe also that the established percentages are too high.

To the thousands, however, who look upon the initiative and referendum merely as a means of assisting the citizens of Ohio to get the kind of laws they want and to defeat the kind of laws they do not want, this sixth amendment will appeal as fair, adequate and commendable. The percentages are higher than in several states, tending to guarantee the measure against abuse. The direct initiative as to laws is unnecessary and was wisely cut from the provision.

By this amendment the people reserve to themselves three distinct powers to be exercised by the petition method:

Upon petition of 10 per cent of the electors of the state an amendment to the constitution may be proposed which shall then be submitted for adoption or rejection at the next regular election. This is a direct initiative, but applies only to constitutional amendments.

Upon petition of 3 per cent of the state's electors, any desired law may be proposed for action by the legislature. If the legislature fails to enact the measure, it goes to the people for action if 3 per cent ask for it by a new petition.

Upon petition of 6 per cent of the voters of Ohio any measure which has been passed by the legislature—barring emergency laws—shall be brought to the people for action at a regular election.

Such in brief are the provisions of the sixth amendment. The direct initiative for the making of laws was cut from the provision after its submission to the convention. As the measure stands laws which come directly from the people shall go first to the legislature. A copy of the proposed law and the petitions must be filed with the secretary of state, not less than ten days before the convening of the legislature. That official submits the measure and petition to the legislature, which then has four months to consider, amend, pass or decline to act on the proposal.

If no action is taken the proposed measure goes on the ballot at the next general election, provided it is demanded by an additional petition of 3 per cent of the voters in the state. If it is amended to the satisfaction of the proponents of the measure and they file no additional petition, it becomes a law after the time for referendum has passed.

All measures initiated by the people and passed by the legislature, or measures passed by the legislature without petition, are subject to a referendum when 6 per cent of the voters of the state so ask.

It is stipulated that the initiative and referendum shall never be used to secure classification of property for taxation or for the imposition of the single tax.

In submitting laws and amendments at elections permission is given the advocates and opponents of a measure to submit with the text statements for and against the measure. Pamphlets containing text and arguments are to be generally distributed.

When measures and amendments go to a referendum no special elections shall be held, all such voting being done at the regular elections.

Ohio is the most populous and the first big industrial state to take up the direct legislative idea. There was able and vigorous opposition to the measure in the convention. Many of its strongest features were secured wholly or in part by the work of men who opposed the basic idea of the new method. These men believed, however, that it was going through it ought to go through in workable shape, that it might have a test as its merits.

Under this amendment no action of the legislature is final, if the people care to have a referendum. That reduces the chances for legislative boondoggling to a minimum. His action not being final, the temptations that oftentimes beset the legislator are removed. Legislatures are no longer supreme; the people have the final word if they care to pronounce it.

The initiative and referendum will probably not be used as often nor as effectively as either its friends hope or its enemies fear. It will stand as a club behind the people's door for emergency use. Any sordid politician tempted to transgress on the rights of the people will know the club is there and hesitate.

The sixth amendment should be given a decisive affirmative at the ballot box.

The Initiative and the Referendum

Judge E. B. King, of Sandusky, Ohio, Constitutional Convention delegate from Erie county, was one of the able leaders of the so-called conservative group in the convention. What he has to say on the subject of the Initiative and Referendum has the merit of an unbiased opinion. Of No. 6, the Initiative and Referendum amendment, now pending before the people, and to be voted upon September 3rd, Judge King says:

"The I. and R. amendment gives to the people the right to petition the General Assembly for the passage of a particular law which they may desire. It gives to the General Assembly perfect freedom of action to pass the law requested, or amend and pass it, or defeat it. It does not impair nor take from the legislative branch of the government any of its independence to legislate according to its judgment. The Constitutions of Ohio since 1802 have permitted the people to petition and to instruct the General Assembly as to their wants. It did not contain a provision that if the legislative body ignored or denied the petition or instructions, that there was any remedy. This amendment simply provides a remedy. It is different from any other proposition of the kind thus far adopted in any state, and in my judgment is a great improvement over any thus far proposed or adopted, because it does not permit the initiating of laws without first appealing to the General Assembly to pass them. It deserves to be adopted."

A Majority On Each Amendment

The Ohio State Board of Commerce has no end of fault to find with the Constitutional Convention, but the bitterest complaint is against the method of submitting the amendments.

Each amendment on the ballot will stand or fall by itself. Its fate will be determined by a majority of the votes cast directly upon it.

This strikes the Board of Commerce as most indefensible and dangerous.

What, pray, would they have? Why, they want to count a vote against every amendment upon which the voter neglects to cast a ballot. Suppose a man votes for woman's suffrage and does not vote upon any of the other forty-one amendments, the Ohio State Board of Commerce would count that as a vote against all of the forty-one amendments. This is what they call "maintaining the stability of the constitution."

Let us look into this little scheme. Say that 1,870,000 ballots are cast at the election, and 100,000 of these do not express themselves one way or the other on woman's suffrage. For woman's suffrage there are 499,999 ballots cast, and against it 400,001. Under the rule adopted by the Convention the measure would be carried, having received of the votes actually cast an affirmative majority of 99,998.

But under the "stability of the constitution" rule, championed by the Chamber of Commerce, the measure would be lost, not having received a majority of all the 1,000,000 votes cast at the election.

The assumption is that every voter who has left his ballot blank on woman's suffrage intended to vote "No." If he intended to vote "No," there was nothing to prevent him. Why didn't he vote? Why not just as reasonably contend that he intended to vote "Yes" and count him in the affirmative? But the evident fact is that if he had any positive conviction he would have expressed it by voting "Yes" or "No." By leaving his ballot blank he expressed indifference. He elected to leave it to the decision of others. A man's ballot should be counted as he casts it. If he says "Yes," it should be counted "Yes." If he says "No," it should be counted "No." If he votes blank, it should be counted blank.

The stand-patter not only wants all doubts resolved in his favor, but he wants indifference also to count on his side.

This is a piece of colossal cheek which the Ohio State Board of Commerce pleases to call insuring the "stability of the constitution." But what they intended was to copper-plate the constitution and make it proof forever against progress.

CLEVELAND NEWSPAPER

Endorses the Initiative and Referendum in its Editorial Columns.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer says that the Initiative and Referendum "should be given a decisive affirmative at the ballot box."

The Ohio State Board of Commerce is urging the voters to oppose all of the amendments, and particularly to oppose the Initiative and Referendum.

The following editorial from the Cleveland Plain Dealer is for several reasons of especial importance. It shows that in the judgment of this paper the voters of Ohio should not be guided by the advice of The Ohio State Board of Commerce.

The Initiative and Referendum provision, which is pending, is fair and wise. It will improve representative government. It will diminish legislative corruption. The adoption of this amendment will be a victory for good government. It will be a triumph of sound and wise statesmanship. Here is what the editorial says:

The I. and R.; Proposal No. 6.
The establishment of the Initiative and Referendum, proposed in the sixth amendment on the Ohio constitutional ballot, was the most widely discussed action of the recent convention. Many will hold it the most important work of the delegates. It was one act specifically authorized by the vote of last November.

This provision as it stands does not suit the ultra-radical advocates of direct legislation. They hold that the general direct initiative should have been written into the amendment. They believe also that the established percentages are too high.

To the thousands, however, who look upon the initiative and referendum merely as a means of assisting the citizens of Ohio to get the kind of laws they want and to defeat the kind of laws they do not want, this sixth amendment will appeal as fair, adequate and commendable. The percentages are higher than in several states, tending to guarantee the measure against abuse. The direct initiative as to laws is unnecessary and was wisely cut from the provision.

By this amendment the people reserve to themselves three distinct powers to be exercised by the petition method:

Upon petition of 10 per cent of the electors of the state an amendment to the constitution may be proposed which shall then be submitted for adoption or rejection at the next regular election. This is a direct initiative, but applies only to constitutional amendments.

Upon petition of 3 per cent of the state's electors any desired law may be proposed for action by the legislature. If the legislature fails to enact the measure, it goes to the people for action if 3 per cent ask for it by a new petition.

Upon petition of 6 per cent of the voters of Ohio any measure which has been passed by the legislature—barring emergency laws—shall be brought to the people for action at a regular election.

Such in brief are the provisions of the sixth amendment. The direct initiative for the making of laws was cut from the provision after its submission to the convention. As the measure stands laws which come directly from the people shall go first to the legislature. A copy of the proposed law and the petitions must be filed with the secretary of state, not less than ten days before the convening of the legislature. That official submits the measure and petition to the legislature, which then has four months to consider, amend, pass or decline to act on the proposal.

If no action is taken the proposed measure goes on the ballot at the next general election, provided it is demanded by an additional petition of 3 per cent of the voters in the state. If it is amended to the satisfaction of the proponents of the measure and they file no additional petition, it becomes a law after the time for referendum has passed.

All measures initiated by the people and passed by the legislature, or measures passed by the legislature without petition, are subject to a referendum when 6 per cent of the voters of the state so ask.

It is stipulated that the initiative and referendum shall never be used to secure classification of property for taxation or for the imposition of the single tax.

In submitting laws and amendments at elections permission is given the advocates and opponents of a measure to submit with the text statements for and against the measure. Pamphlets containing text and arguments are to be generally distributed.

When measures and amendments go to a referendum no special elections shall be held, all such voting being done at the regular elections.

Ohio is the most populous and the first big industrial state to take up the direct legislative idea. There was able and vigorous opposition to the measure in the convention. Many of its strongest features were secured wholly or in part by the work of men who opposed the basic idea of the new method. These men believed, however, that it was going through it ought to go through in workable shape, that it might have a test as its merits.

Under this amendment no action of the legislature is final, if the people care to have a referendum. That reduces the chances for legislative brooding to a minimum. His action not being final, the temptations that oftentimes beset the legislator are removed. Legislatures are no longer supreme; the people have the final word if they care to pronounce it.

The initiative and referendum will probably not be used as often nor as effectively as either its friends hope or its enemies fear. It will stand as a club behind the people's door for emergency use. Any sordid politician tempted to transgress on the rights of the people will know the club is there and hesitate.

The sixth amendment should be given a decisive affirmative at the ballot box.

The Initiative and the Referendum

Judge E. E. King, of Sandusky, Ohio, Constitutional Convention delegate from Erie county, was one of the able leaders of the so-called conservative group in the convention. What he has to say on the subject of the Initiative and Referendum has the merit of an unbiased opinion. Of No. 6, the Initiative and Referendum amendment, now pending before the people, and to be voted upon September 3rd, Judge King says:

"The I. and R. amendment gives to the people the right to petition the General Assembly for the passage of a particular law which they may desire. It gives to the General Assembly perfect freedom of action to pass the law requested, or amend and pass it, or defeat it. It does not impair nor take from the legislative branch of the government any of its independence to legislate according to its judgment. The Constitutions of Ohio since 1802 have permitted the people to petition and to instruct the General Assembly as to their wants. It did not contain a provision that if the legislative body ignored or denied the petition or instructions, that there was any remedy. This amendment simply provides a remedy. It is different from any other proposition of the kind thus far adopted in any state, and in my judgment is a great improvement over any thus far proposed or adopted, because it does not permit the initiating of laws without first appealing to the General Assembly to pass them. It deserves to be adopted."

A Majority On Each Amendment

The Ohio State Board of Commerce has no end of fault to find with the Constitutional Convention, but the bitterest complaint is against the method of submitting the amendments.

Each amendment on the ballot will stand or fall by itself. Its fate will be determined by a majority of the votes cast directly upon it.

This strikes the Board of Commerce as most indefensible and dangerous.

What, pray, would they have? Why, they want to count a vote against every amendment upon which the voter neglects to cast a ballot. Suppose a man votes for woman's suffrage and does not vote upon any of the other forty-one amendments, the Ohio State Board of Commerce would count that as a vote against all of the forty-one amendments. This is what they call "maintaining the stability of the constitution."

Let us look into this little scheme. Say that 1,800,000 ballots are cast at the election, and 100,000 of these do not express themselves one way or the other on woman's suffrage. For woman's suffrage there are 499,999 ballots cast, and against it 400,001. Under the rule adopted by the Convention the measure would be carried, having received of the votes actually cast an affirmative majority of 99,998.

But under the "stability of the constitution" rule, championed by the Chamber of Commerce, the measure would be lost, not having received a majority of all the 1,000,000 votes cast at the election.

The assumption is that every voter who has left his ballot blank on woman's suffrage intended to vote "No." If he intended to vote "No," there was nothing to prevent him. Why didn't he vote? Why not just as reasonably contend that he intended to vote "Yes" and count him in the affirmative? But the evident fact is that if he had any positive conviction he would have expressed it by voting "Yes" or "No." By leaving his ballot blank he expressed indifference. He elected to leave it to the decision of others. A man's ballot should be counted as he casts it. If he says "Yes," it should be counted "Yes." If he says "No," it should be counted "No." If he votes blank, it should be counted blank.

The stand-patter not only wants all doubts resolved in his favor, but he wants indifference also to count on his side.

This is a piece of colossal cheek which the Ohio State Board of Commerce pleases to call insuring the "stability of the constitution." But what they intended was to copper-plate the constitution and make it proof forever against progress.

Ambidextrous Hurler With Mechanicsburg In Tomorrow's Game

Waiting Team Comes Here for Sunday Game With a Splendid Record Which Justifies Their Confidence of Victory Over the Local Boys.

A bunch of new faces in new uniforms with a new system of play, in fact a new base ball team from Mechanicsburg, Ohio, heralded far and near as a classy amateur bunch will arrive here to contest with the Washington Athletics, in a real ball game at the Columbus avenue ground Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The Mechanicsburg team is a classy bunch and feel just real confident that they will make our boys lower the flag which their long string of victories has warranted them in flying.

The party will come over here in 15 automobiles demanding victory and no compromise.

Our "Athletics" think they can take the measure of the egotistical team but they know that they will be required to extend themselves to the limit. The visitors are fully entitled and feel puffed up for they carry real base ball goods and have men exhibitions of the article many times during the season.

The lineup of Mechanicsburg is as follows.

Brown, p; Young 3b; Day 1b; Mitty c; Acton rf; Merceson lf; Smith cf; Kelley ss; Gordon 2b; Williams, Stall.

Included in the bunch is Brown, the ambidextrous pitcher who is reputed to be a wonder. When the opposing batsman land on his bends delivered with his right arm he slips to the left side delivery. It claimed for him that he is equally artistic with either arm and in a pinch can deliver with either hand alternately.

Brown is recognized as one of the very few effective either arm pitchers now doing business.

M'GINNITY STILL "IRON MAN"

Grand Old Man of Baseball and Once Star of New York Giants, Performs Great Stunt.

"Iron Man" Joe McGinnity, grand old man of baseball and one time star pitcher for the New York Giants, carved another niche in his personal hall of fame the other day when he twice defeated Rochester, leaders of the International league and three times champions of that organization. In the first game McGinnity, pitching for Newark, allowed Rochester nine hits and won by the comparatively close score of 4 to 3. In the second, pitching the same sort of ball which made him the most talked of player in the country, he blanked his opponents, allowing but five hits and only two to get as far as third base. It was a great day for McGinnity.

NOTES of the DIAMOND

Umpire Brick Owens wears steel shoes while on the job. He has corns.

Infielder Mattick of Kewanee is a brother of the Chicago White Sox outfielder.

And, after all, Rube Marquard was the first Giant pitcher to lose three straight.

New York writers say that the present St. Louis Browns club is the worst in the world.

Tesreau is the biggest man in the big leagues. He weighs 241 pounds. He is wild, but not savage.

The way "Dingdong" Bell is going with Newark gives a hint that he may be back in the big show next year.

New York isn't going to pledge itself on the coming election until it hears how Rube Marquard is going to vote.

Eppa Rixey's family is much disturbed because he is determined to follow the career of a professional ball player.

Rube Oldring says Amos Strunk is the fastest man in baseball today, and believes he is faster than Craig of Olympic fame.

Jack Lelivelt, once a star on the Washington team, probably will be signed by the Yanks, along with Tommy McMillan.

Fred Clarke is to retire as manager of the Pirates next year and Billy Murray is to succeed him. Oh, yes, merely a rumor.

Silk O'Loughlin is getting to be a tremendous disciplinarian. The other day in a game at Philadelphia he even banished the bat boy.

Cy Young says that all the really great ball players come from the country. For instance, Cub Helms Zimmerman of the Bronx.

FAMOUS "BONEHEAD" PLAYS ON MAJOR LEAGUE DIAMONDS

Explained by Leading Baseball Players to
HUGH S. FULLERTON

BY ROGER BRESNAHAN,

Manager St. Louis Cardinals, Who Is Regarded as One of the Greatest Catchers the Game Ever Has Known.

After a fellow has been catching as long as I have, he has trouble picking out the worst bonehead play he ever made. We all make plenty of mistakes with our heads, as well as our hands, and far be it from me to claim to be an exception. There is one that may not have been the worst I ever made, but it was bad enough, and it was two seasons before I would laugh over it, although it was funny.

I made it while I was catching for New York years ago. We were up there fighting the leaders at the time, and every game counted, and in that series we had five games to play against a weak club, and we expected to clean up and get right close to the top. It was the second game of the series that gave me the chance to pull the play. The team we were playing against had recently purchased a player who was a magnificent hitter, but slow on his feet, and among the players he had a reputation of being one of the slowest thinkers in the business. In fact, he was so slow and so bad that he didn't steal more than one or two bases a year, and then usually when no one tried to stop him. He was so bad it was impossible to catch him on the bases, because he put his foot on the bag and staid there, probably under orders from his manager, who knew his reputation for slow thinking, and wouldn't take a chance on letting him make a blunder. I won't tell who he was, or what club he belonged to, as I don't want to knock him.

Anyhow, in the second game of the series the score was 2 to 1 in our favor in the first half of the ninth, and we were playing at home. It looked so, for us, as Matty was pitching and going at his best, so it seemed as if they never could score except by accident. The first man went out, and then came the big, slow fellow, who hit the ball clear down to the fence in center field. It would have been a home run for almost anyone, but he was too slow, and stopped at second. I knew it would take another home run, or at least a double, to send him home, and I decided to try a little scheme to see if I couldn't pull him into making a blunder. I decided to let the ball hit my mitt, roll a few feet away, bluff that it had gone to the stand, and try to make him start to third. He was so slow that I hadn't a bit to fear. I did it, ran back, past the ball, picked it up and looked—and you may imagine my surprise to see him within ten feet of third and starting to slide! He had started with the pitch to steal that base. He scored on a long fly, tied it up and they beat us out in the tenth.

The tough part of it was that he never stole another base that year, and I found out from one of their players that he only stole because he got mixed in signals and thought he was ordered to steal.

REMARKABLE CLIMAX OF CUBS-SOX WORLD'S SERIES

THIS is a story of a game of thrills. A game replete with incident from bell to bell. The crucial contest of a series that astonished a record for mechanical skill and cold nerve. A game accompanied by scenes of wild enthusiasm theretofore unequalled. The fifth game of the world's series between Sox and Cubs, October 13, 1906.

No less than seven of the twenty-one men engaged in that memorable struggle furnished brilliant reputations to a still brighter hue that sunny afternoon, and another failed in a bit of strategy which if successful might have won the championship of the world for the team which lost. The attempt failed because of a combined display of skill and brain which has never been excelled, possibly never equaled, in the annals of baseball. The actors in that crowning feature of an exciting day were James Tilden Sheekard, fast, alert, brainy, "Jiggs" Donahue, the frail specter whose acrobatic feats were a cause for daily wonder, and George S. Davis, renowned short fielder.

Of the four preceding games two had been won by each team. Three of those had been won by a lucky break and it was thought that the team which won the third victory would be sure to take the sixth and deciding game. Such was the case. To achieve this result, however, the American league champions threw form to the winds. They, the hitless "wonders" and sure and fast fielders, became for the day heavy sluggers and uncertain fielders, which accounted for the plays which made the assembled thousands sit subjects for the mad house.

The game was played at Cub Park and as he last half of the eighth inning began the score stood 8 to 6 in favor of the White Sox. That no more than eight runs had been scored by the visitors was due to the fact that several near miracles had been performed by the agile young Cubs made desperate, as first Neubach and then Pfister had been driven to cover by the rain of base hits from the bats of their rivals. Numerous errors by the Sox and timely drives had enabled the Cubs to keep dangerously close, and, as John Kling came up to open their half of the eighth they were still hopeful. Kling grounded out and Overall struck out. Then Isbell fumbled Sheekard's drive. This was the crisis. Schulte, the only care free person in all that multitude, was next up. Twice during the game he had connected for ringing hits off Walsh, but this time he faced White and his shadowy southpaw curve. The batter connected with the ball as it faded away over the outside corner and dribbled a slow bouncer towards short. For the Sox the game was almost lost. For the Cubs a world's pennant was nearly won. Third Baseman Rohe picked up the grounder and made a late, low throw toward first. Davis had also made a play for the ball, leaving third base uncovered. Sheekard noted the opening and without hesitating at second continued to third. At the same instant Davis realized the danger of the situation and, wheeling about, raced with the flying runner for the bag. Far back of first where he had recovered the ball Donahue timed a throw which with marvelous skill Davis caught with one hand and touched the runner, an instant before they reached the base, over which they collided and fell. Davis held the ball. The inning was over. The game was won. Only the last spike that fastened the world's championship flag to the White Sox mast remained to be driven home, and that was an easy task on the following day.

Repairs of Public Roads Now Receiving Attention

With the completion of the wheat, hay and oat harvest the work of repairing the several hundred miles of roadways in the county has been taken up, and next week will behold several hundred persons engaged in repairing the public highways as customary each year.

Never before in the history of Fayette's public roads has there been greater need for road repair than now, and every cent available for road repair will be placed upon the pikes which are fast wearing out unless thousands of loads of gravel and crushed stone are properly distributed, next winter will see the highways even more impassable than they were last spring.

Many miles of the leading roads need special attention, and only a liberal dressing of gravel or stone can save them from being cut thru from fence to fence again next spring when thawing commences.

Within the next three weeks, under the combined effort of the hundreds who will be engaged in helping save the roads, many thousands of loads of rebuilding material will be distributed, the supervisors will undoubtedly see that the repairing is done where most needed.

Preserving the pikes of the county has long since become a serious problem, and one which has not been worked out satisfactorily.

A Punch for Teddy Delivered in Senate By Wisconsin Senator

While Debating on Wool Tariff
Veto LaFollette "Branches Off" to Hand a Few to Roosevelt.

Washington, D. C., August 16.—Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin, in a picturesque and spontaneous outburst during a debate of the President's Wool Tariff veto in the senate, today attacked the Progressive party and swore new allegiance to Progressive Republicanism.

The "original progressive" reviewed briefly the trust record of Colonel Roosevelt and after describing the Chicago convention, he declared that when the Republican party, through its progressive associates, had reached a point where it would "respond to the purpose for which it was born an attempt is made at Chicago to divert it."

Senator Stone asked Mr. LaFollette whether he meant the nomination of president Taft or the nomination of former president Roosevelt.

"I am awfully surprised," began Senator LaFollette, "that I left the Senator from Missouri in doubt. I hope I did not leave doubt in the mind of any one else."

Then, moving down the center aisle

"FIGHTING BOB" Hands One to T. R.

ROBERT M. LAFOLLETTE.
U. S. Senator From Wisconsin.

until his outstretched, shaking hands almost touched the stenographers' tables, he continued:

"On the day that Theodore Roosevelt was made President of the United States there were 149 trusts and combinations in the United States. When he turned this Government over to William Howard Taft there were 10,020 plants in combinations. When he became president these trusts had an average capitalization of $3,000,000,000, and when he left the Presidency they had an aggregate capitalization of $31,000,000,000, and more than 70 per cent of it was water.

"Time To Have Done It."

"Their power has gone growing and spreading. There has been no diminution in the present administration. The present administration has sought to apply the Sherman anti-trust law more vigorously than its predecessor, but the time to have applied the Sherman anti-trust law effectively was in the infancy of these trusts, when there were only 149.

"I don't believe that the man who was President for seven years, while the greatest trust growth occurred, at the very time of all times in the history of the Sherman anti-trust law it could have been made potential in deterring trust organization. I do not think that the man who was President then is the man to find the way out now."

Then, turning to Senator Stone, Senator LaFollette bowed and inquired:

"Does that answer the Senator from Missouri?"

"That does fairly well," responded Senator Stone, dryly, amid the laughter of the Senate.

Senator Pomerene inquired if Senator LaFollette would tell how many of the 10,120 trusts were "good" ones and how many of them "bad."

None Is His Friend.

"I have no way to differentiate," returned Senator LaFollette, "because none of the trusts are my friend. If any of them were supporting my propaganda with large contributions I suppose I would be human enough to call them 'good trusts.' They know about the Wisconsin system and they know it is the real dope for their business."

"So I have no gorge with Perkins and no Munsey supporting me. It is a lone practically single handed fight I have been waging for 25 years and, Mr. President, I am going to keep on until the bell rings and the curtain drops."
